Art Unit: 1616

Claims 73-80 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Nowhere in the specification does applicant disclose less than 10% biochanin A. Applicants disclose less than 10% of other isoflavones (page 9 lines 21-22) but do not disclose biochanin A with particularity.

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 73-80 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention lacks patentable utility. The claimed prevention of menopausal symptoms is not credible because applicant provides no standard by which to test prevention nor is evidence for prevention provided.

Claims 73-80 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for treatment, does not reasonably provide enablement for prevention. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. Because the claimed invention is not credible, applicant is not enabled for the claimed method.

Art Unit: 1616

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 73-80 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 11 of U.S. Patent No. 5,830,887. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the patented claim encompasses the scope of the instant claims.

Applicants argue that the patent does not teach the treatment of the instant claimed composition. However, the claimed treatment in a composition claim is an intended use which is not considered a patentable limitation during prosecution before the USPTO. Further, the patented claim is directed to any use, encompassing that instantly claimed. As to the instant claimed percentages, claim 11 of the patent claims percentages of both formononetin and biochanin A without limit, that is, up to 100%, encompassing the instant claimed percentages. As to the instant claimed genistein, it is merely optional. Absent a showing of unexpected results, optimum suitable percentages may be obtained by routine experimentation. In re Boesch 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA1980).

No claims allowed.
